Technical Director

Cologne

We are looking for a technical director who will bring our technical teams to top performance. We are not looking for a welcomed C ++ programmer, but a creative developer and team leader who wants to bring new innovative projects to the start. We use various technologies and programming languages to create the best possible experience. Your task is to get the best out of the circumstances and ideally create new projects never seen before. You decide together with us how the whole goes on.

We do not develop "internet presences", but solutions that fascinate, move and impress the end user - be it on the desktop, mobile, console, an installation or what else comes to mind. We offer you a job in which you never stop learning and experience your fascination with the digital-creative world together with our team of screen and motion designers, designers and developers.

Tasks

- You are committed, talented and possess team spirit.
- You have extensive experience in the web / app and / or installation area.
- You master the backend as well as the front end.
- You can create technical concepts and present them to the customer.
- You have experience with interactive projects from start to deployment.

Please send your application not via snail mail, but via mail to jobs@demodern.de
